MULTICURRENCY

Accept and settle payments the way you and your customers want

Flexibility and reach to control your global business locally

Accepting multiple currencies through international banking systems is complex and often costly.

With fluctuating FX rates and local and international regulations, there's a lot that can go wrong.

Worldpay from FIS' Multicurrency brings you more than 40 years of experience taking and making local payments internationally and will manage your money with you securely, clearly and simply.

Take control and manage your exposure to risk

To unlock the power of global eCommerce, letting your customers pay you in their local currency creates transparency and increases the chances they will complete the payment.

If they pay you in a different currency than their own, they're less likely to recognize the charge on their bank statement. You're also less likely to convert the sale.

Localizing the purchase experience reduces customer complaints and chargebacks and significantly enhances customer loyalty and repeat purchase.

But, how do you manage the risk of pricing in another currency when exchange rates are constantly changing?
